Overview of Aidspan

Aidspan (www.aidspan.org) is a Kenya-based international Non-government Organisation whose mission is to reinforce the effectiveness of the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria by serving as an independent watchdog of the Fund and its grant implementers. Aidspan does this by providing information, analysis and advice, facilitating critical debate, and promoting greater transparency and accountability to ensure both effectiveness and impact.

The Global Fund (www.theglobalfund.org), created in 2002, provides 21% of all international financing for AIDS, 82% for tuberculosis and 50% for malaria. By October 2012 the Fund had approved over $22 billion in grants in 151 countries, and it estimated that programmes that it supports had saved over 8.7 million lives. The innovative design of the Fund (in which grants are "country-led," and where non-performance can lead to grants being terminated), and the speed of the Fund's growth, are remarkable. But these factors have also led to the Global Fund having some weaknesses, as follows:

- Insufficient knowledge: It is often difficult for grant applicants and other stakeholders to understand the Global Fund's policies and procedures; and it is particularly difficult to know what impact individual Global Fund grants are achieving.
- Insufficient discussion: There is insufficient discussion by Global Fund stakeholders regarding how to improve the Fund's policies and procedures and how to increase the impact of its grants.
- Insufficient impact: The Global Fund and grant implementers are acting too slowly to address their limitations; this reduces the impact of the Fund's grants.

Aidspan's vision is that the Global Fund will raise and disburse adequate money to fight AIDS, TB and malaria worldwide, with the Fund and the implementers of its grants being fully transparent, fully accountable, and achieving the greatest possible impact.

Aidspan activities have led to improved understanding of Global Fund procedures, freezing of grants and jail sentences for corruption, improved grant management in many countries, and widespread praise from varied stakeholders in developed and developing countries.

Aidspan's work falls into three main areas:

- Conduct research, and publish information, analysis and advice, with the desired outcome that Global Fund stakeholders have a better understanding of the Fund's policies and procedures, and they know more about what impact Global Fund grants are achieving. Aidspan provides this through its newsletter Global Fund Observer (GFO), currently received by nearly 10,000 subscribers, through Aidspan Guides, and through a comprehensive website.
- Facilitate discussion, with the desired outcome that there is increased critical analysis as to how to improve Global Fund policies and procedures and how to increase the impact of the grants. Aidspan does this through discussion pages on its website, through Round Tables, in-country and regional workshops, and through mentoring of local watchdogs.
- Push for increased Global Fund impact, with the desired outcome that the impact of the Fund's grants increases, and more lives are saved. Aidspan does this through commentary and analysis articles in GFO, through white papers, through interactions with key actors, and as a natural consequence of the above two areas of its work.

Aidspan is a US-registered, not-for-profit organisation that has permission from Kenya's government to operate in Kenya. Aidspan's board has six members, from Kenya, South Africa, Rwanda, the US and the UK. Meetings alternate between Nairobi and New York Aidspan's role, methods, and activities are summarized in the "Strategic framework in one page" (see page 6).

Aidspan works only on Global Fund issues. It seeks to be of benefit to all countries interested in Global Fund issues, and to serve all sectors. Some highlights of Aidspan's work since it was founded in 2002 are:

- December 2002: Aidspan launched GFO, rapidly establishing it as the definitive source of news, analysis and commentary about the Global Fund.
- 2002-2004: Over the first two years of the Global Fund, Aidspan, working with two others, developed and refined the Equitable Contributions Framework, an analytical technique which proposed how much money each donor country should give to the Fund based on that country's relative wealth. This approach (which was adopted by many advocacy NGOs, and then, in modified form, by the Global Fund itself) is believed to have had a distinct impact on governmental contributions to the Fund.
- March 2004: Aidspan published its first "Guide to Applying to the Global Fund," updating it annually thereafter.
- July 2005: The Global Fund launched an in-depth external audit of Secretariat procedures after Aidspan wrote a confidential memo to the Fund's Chair raising certain concerns.
- Aug. 2005: The Global Fund temporarily suspended all grants to Uganda after confirming allegations regarding corruption first made when a reader of GFO contacted Aidspan, and Aidspan took the matter up with the Fund.
- Jan. 2007: Aidspan held a Round Table on problems faced by Global Fund recipients in accessing technical assistance, attended by the heads of UNAIDS, PEPFAR, the WHO and World Bank AIDS programmes, and other global health leaders.
- May 2007: Aidspan moved its headquarters from New York, US, to Nairobi, Kenya.
- Sept. 2007: Aidspan described in GFO how China had almost entirely reversed plans to use grass-roots NGOs to implement much of an innovative Global Fund grant.
- April 2008: Aidspan held a Round Table to discuss what could be done to enable countries funded by the Fund to significantly increase the scale of their operations.
- Feb. 2009: Aidspan circulated a memo providing detailed information regarding major problems in the implementation of Kenya's Global Fund grants.
- Mid 2009: Uganda jailed four officials for Global Fund-related corruption that was first reported by Aidspan.
- 2009: Aidspan developed its Strategic Plan for 2010-2013, based on which it raised increased funding.
- June 2010: Aidspan published a Commentary in GFO entitled "Is the Global Fund Living Up to Its Principles?" which pointed out that despite the Fund's commitment to performance-based funding, not one Global Fund grant had been terminated at the end of Phase 1 during the previous three years. During the subsequent one year, six such grants were terminated.
- 2010: Aidspan increased its staff from five to ten.
- May 2011: A Commentary in GFO entitled "Auditing the Auditor" which discussed problems with the Global Fund's Office of the Inspector General (OIG) led to GFO receiving and publishing Letters to the Editor from the heads of five principal recipients, one Minister of Health, a CCM, and the Chair of the Global Fund Board.
- April 2012: A UK parliamentary committee invited Aidspan's Executive Director to make a presentation during hearings it was holding on the Global Fund. In its written submission, Aidspan provided strong and clearly-documented opinions on how the Fund is doing, and on what needs to change in order for the Fund to remain relevant and effective.

- June 2012: Aidspan published a Commentary in GFO entitled "20,000 Kenyan Lives Not Saved." The Commentary highlighted how $67 million of Global Fund money meant for Kenya was never sent by the Global Fund to Kenya because of problems with grant implementation. This GFO Commentary was carried by three Kenyan national newspapers and was responded to by the Global Fund, the Kenya CCM, Kenyan government officials and HIV/AIDS activists in Kenya.
- August 2012: Aidspan launched a new website. This included a "GFO Live" feature where articles are posted as soon as they are ready, prior to their subsequent publication in the GFO Newsletter. It also included "Grant pages" where all Fund grant data are available for easy analysis and presentation.
- September 2012: Aidspan launched a discussion page to permit participant input on various topics. One of the first topics was the Global Fund's new funding model (NFM). The Fund encouraged Aidspan to invite feedback to Aidspan's interpretation and summary of the evolving NFM. About 2,000 people visited the summaries Aidspan had posted. The Global Fund communication office described Aidspan's writers as "the explainers."

The year 2012 was particularly challenging for the Global Fund; it was the year in which the Fund carried out a major change of approach, and a consequent restructuring, in response to the many criticisms that were made of it during 2011. The criticisms essentially consisted of charges that the Fund was insufficiently focused on risk management and had developed procedures that were too complex. During 2013 the Fund will need to prove that the changes it has made are adequate and are effective. Aidspan will be observing closely, and commenting accordingly.

Aidspan made its own changes during 2012. In particular, Bernard Rivers, who founded Aidspan and led it through its first decade, handed over the leadership function to Dr. Kate Macintyre on 1 September 2012. Bernard will continue to serve Aidspan on a part-time basis in his new capacity as Aidspan's first Senior Fellow; this will involve him in conducting some of Aidspan's research work and in writing some GFO commentaries.

Vision

Aidspan's vision is that the Global Fund will raise and disburse adequate money to fight AIDS, TB and malaria worldwide, with the Fund and the implementers of its grants being fully transparent, fully accountable, and achieving the greatest possible impact.

Obstacles (i.e. situation analysis)

Insufficient knowledge: It is often difficult to understand the Global Fund's policies and procedures, and it is particularly difficult to know what impact individual grants are achieving.

Insufficient discussion: There is insufficient discussion by Global Fund stakeholders regarding how to improve the Fund's policies and procedures and how to increase the impact of its grants.

Insufficient impact: The Global Fund, CCMs and grant implementers are acting too slowly to address their limitations; as a result, the impact of the Fund's grants is less than it could be.

Mission

Aidspan's mission is to serve as an independent watchdog of the Global Fund and its grant implementers through providing information, analysis and advice, facilitating critical debate, and promoting greater transparency, accountability, effectiveness and impact.

Target groups

- People and institutions in any sector who are applying for, overseeing, implementing or benefitting from Global Fund grants, or who aspire to do these things.
- People and institutions who want to see the Global Fund achieve greater impact.

Activities

Conduct research on the Global Fund and on the implementers of its grants, evaluate the Fund's overall impact, and publish information, analysis and advice on the Fund.

Facilitate discussion about the Global Fund by organising Round Tables, hosting web discussions and CCM websites, and mentoring local watchdogs.

Push for increased Global Fund impact by publishing White Papers and GFO Commentary articles, and by privately interacting with key actors.

Outcomes

More knowledge: Global Fund stakeholders have a better understanding of the Fund's policies and procedures, and they know more about what impact individual grants are achieving.

Increased discussion: There is increased discussion by all stakeholders regarding how to improve the Fund's policies and procedures and how to increase the impact of its grants.

Greater impact: The impact of Global Fund grants increases. More lives are saved.

2013 Annual Plan: Assumptions

Activities shown below are not listed in order of importance; nor are they listed in the order in which they will be carried out. They are grouped logically by the units who will carry them out. Thus, for instance, even though most of the research will be done by the Research unit, some research will be carried out by staff from other units, in which case it is shown under those units. We have cross-referenced most of those that fall between two units.

The activities and targets are based on the assumption that Aidspan's nine existing staff and one fulltime consultant are joined in early 2013 by a junior Research Officer, an Editor/ Writer and a Programme Officer (Outreach).

Part of Aidspan's work involves "watching and networking". This can require the investment of significant amounts of time by staff. This investment enables us to respond rapidly to new Global Fund-related developments, most obviously by providing informed comment in GFO newsletter and GFO Live, and it enables staff in one unit (e.g., Research) to help staff in another unit (e.g., Editorial, or Outreach) to perform their work more effectively.

Inevitably, there are likely to be unanticipated Global Fund-related developments during 2013 that will cause Aidspan to decide to drop a small number of activities below and to replace them with new activities.

Selected but key targets are listed under the Board Activity objective to which they refer. Many other targets will be set by each unit in their own work plans, but these are not included in this overview of the organization annual plan.

The Strategic Plan 2014-2016 will be developed with extensive discussion with all stakeholders and considerable analysis of prior performance, strengths and weaknesses, and projected major themes within the Global Fund world. We will also commission an external evaluation of Aidspan's Strategic Plan 2010 – 2013, to be completed prior to the next strategic plan. Following this, we have budgeted for a full staff retreat, part of which will entail a workshop facilitated by a small experienced external team. The Board and wider network of supporters of Aidspan will be invited to participate in all stages of developing the Strategic Plan 2014-2016.

Some selected key activities within Aidspan's operation include:

Within the Research Unit:

- Focusing closely on the Global Fund's new leadership, new Funding Model and Strategy will keep the Research and Editorial teams hard at work conducting in-depth analysis and publishing findings and stories on a large range of these and related topics.
- The Governance of Global Institutions (GGI) project is Bernard Rivers' first project as Senior Fellow. It is likely to be a fascinating and rewarding exploration of the history, the successes or failures of the Global Fund model.
- The analysis of the Price and Quality Reporting system (PQR), that the Fund has used for the past 6 years, will be finalized. Findings will be published in a peer reviewed publication.
- How the Global Fund categorizes countries as "High Impact" and how these compare with the other large funding or technical health agencies will be answered in a short paper to be produced early in 2013.
- How effective is the Global Fund's support for stigma-reduction programmes? This question will be explored by Helen Epstein through case studies in 3 countries.

A region often ignored by other donors is the Middle East and North Africa region (MENA).
 Aidspan will conduct a series of overview and short studies to assess the contribution of the Global Fund to disease prevention and treatment in these areas.

Within Editorial:

- The Global Fund Observer will be translated into French, Russian and Spanish. This expands Aidspan's communications and reach enormously but will challenge the management and responsiveness of the small editorial team.
- The Global Fund Observer will be published on a bi-monthly basis, but the GFO Live section of the website will be continue to show news articles and commentaries as they are completed.
- At least four new, and several revised Guides will be published. More Guides are at proposal stage but depend on the development around the New Funding Model as to exactly what those Guides may contain.

Within the Outreach Unit:

- The Local Watchdog Project and the improving in-country accountability is a core part of Outreach. This project will expand to a further 10 new countries and conduct 3 more large watchdog workshops.
- In combination with the cross-programme unit, work will continue to strengthen CCMs performance through technical assistance (TA) for website development and through a partnership with The Southern African AIDS Trust to evaluate the performance of 6 CCMs in Southern Africa.

Within the Monitoring and Evaluation Unit:

- A new strategic plan (2014-16) will be developed and published by December 2013. This requires a number of other sub activities:
 - a. An external evaluation of Aidspan's current Strategic plan (2010-13).
 - b. A revised communications strategy
 - c. A new fundraising strategy
 - d. A new partnership strategy
 - e. A revised Research Framework

Within the Cross-programme Unit:

- New developments in data management will include the launch of a platform that allows users to analyze grant performance data by regions, diseases and type of PR.
- Aidspan's data manager and systems officer will travel to Geneva for several days to present this new platform in 2013 to obtain feedback and share information with his equivalent team at the Global Fund. This is strong evidence of south to north Technical Assistance.
- The translation activities extend to the Aidspan website which will be translated into French, Russian and Spanish in 2013. This is an effort of many units but will help Aidspan become truly global in its reach and impact.
